What is the best breaker for a winch?

There is no one "best" type of breaker for your winch - it depends on the specific application and wiring configuration of your winch. You have to choose according to the need of your winch. Standard options include: ground fault circuit interrupters(GFCIs),reset switches,and overload protection devices.

What is a circuit breaker for a winch?

A circuit breaker for a winch is a device that protects the electrical system from overload. When power comes into the circuit,it automatically goes to each device in turn. It shuts off if it senses an overload. This protects the winch and any other devices connected to it from getting damaged in case of an electrical emergency.
